Names of Members in Group:

Answer the following questions about your primary source:

1. Is the primary source a letter, document, picture, or political cartoon?

2. Examine your primary source in as much detail as possible. Questions you should answer:
 - A. Where does the source come from?

 - B. Who wrote the source? If it's a picture or cartoon, who created it (if available)?

 - C. Where did your source come from?

 - D. What people, places, and events do you observe in your source? Provide as much detail as possible. The more detail, the more you know.

3. From what you know of the source, in your opinion, which side does your source take? Is it in favor of joining the war or does it favor neutrality? Explain your reasoning.

4. From your investigation of the source, what conclusions can we draw about the attitude of the United States toward the war in Europe?
